PANIC-STRUCK,

Many Banks Forced to Close Their Doors.

TELLS PLENTY, CASH SCARCE.

From Depositors Causes All the Trouble: Assets Largely in Excess of Liabilities—The Worst Is Past—Other Failures.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Three national banks—the Union National, the Commercial National and the National Bank of Commerce—closed their doors this morning owing to the heavy demands of depositors. The Mercantile bank, a private institution doing business in the Mining Exchange building, followed, owing to the closing of a bank through which its clearings were made.

The suspension of three savings banks caused alarm among the community. At 10 o'clock this morning, the hour for opening the banks, crowds had gathered in front of nearly all the financial institutions. At the German and City National banks the run was heaviest, while at the First National, the People's, and one or two others felt the unusual pressure to a lesser extent. The streets were full of people discussing the situation. It was an orderly crowd, however, and there was much sensible and reasonable talk. The run on the People's bank exhausted itself, and by 11 o'clock it resumed their normal appearance. At the City National the run began to slacken at 11 o'clock and at the other banks, the German, the Excelsior and others, it began to slacken by noon. At the Germania bank the crowd kept in line in front of the teller's window all the afternoon.

Long before 10 o'clock there was a crowd in front and side doors of the National bank the following notice signed by R. W. Woodbury, president of the Union National bank was posted on the doors by the comptroller of the bank: "We have paid to our depositors and creditors $1,000,000 in cash, and our remaining liabilities are about to about $600,000, and our assets are rapidly coming in and enough loan payments have been promised the last of the week to enable us to take care of deposits. If they are paid and the creditors do not ask for their money, we shall then resume business. We believe every depositor will be paid that he can by no means wait of his deposit."

Much more attention was given to the notice posted than to the talk of the gathered at each door and quite a few of their component individuals were constantly changing, the latter rushing up the steps, reading the statement of President Woodbury and giving a variety of interpretations to it. Nearly seemed to be a universal sentiment that the deposits were perfectly safe.

The Commercial National bank did not open its doors at all, preferring to suspend until a more favorable run. This notice was posted on the door: "This bank has gone into the hands of the order of the board of directors." There was no excitement whatever. Those who stopped to read the notice seemed quietly about the prospects of a resumed comment of an ultimate settlement in full.

The National Bank of Commerce was a long line at the window of the paying teller. Within a minute of 10 the doors were unlocked at 10 o'clock and the money was paid out by the teller's hand and for thirty minutes it passed out the money as fast as the checks were presented. By that time a number of waiting depositors had gathered to nearly one hundred and the teller decided to take time by the forelock and ascertain that actual cash was still in the vault. Therefore at 10:30 a notice was posted on each of the doors, reading as follows: "It is bank is closed. By order of the Board of Directors." These doors were quickly filled out with scarcely a disappointment and in a few minutes the place was clear of any crowd. Many paused to scan the announcement.

The Mercantile Bank, recently incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000 located in the Mining Exchange building, its doors this morning with W. F. Robinson as assignee. C. E. Mac, president, city auditor, is the president of the bank and the directors are considered as being of Denver's substantial business men.

The suspension of payment was brought about by the closing of the National Bank, through which Mercantile had made clearances. It is confidently stated that the bank's deposits will receive every dollar due. The bank had been in operation a few months and had comparatively few depositors, consequently its suspension caused very little excitement.

At the Colorado National there was a run on the bank, but the number of new accounts caused the officials of that institution to look happy.

The City National officials announced that they had paid out about $[illegible]. At the same hour nearly the same was stopped at the First National. There was a run, however, that did not amount to anything. The officials said that they had rather invited the run by their clearance, but not more than $20,000 was paid out.

At the State National all of those who were inside the doors at 10 o'clock said it was estimated that $100,000 had been paid out. The run was quickly broken at 2 o'clock.

At the German National there was a long line reaching far out on the sidewalk, but not a business man was seen in the line. At 2:15 the crowd was still large, but many were tiring and dropping out. About $70,000 had been paid out, mostly in small amounts. The run was stopped at 3 p. m., the regular closing hour.

A run was reported on the Denver National, but it proved a mistake. The board was composed of the Union Pacific railway employees and others from the Grant smelter with time checks. There was no run.

The City National bank met all demands and ex-President Barth said that if the depositors wanted to keep the run for the next two months, the bank would still be meeting demands on presentation.

At the Denver Savings bank, the only savings bank now open, there was a run this morning which was over by noon. Money was paid out.

The general opinion among the bankers and business men is that the panic is over and that no more banks will be forced to close although the run in a few days may continue against two or three for a day or two yet. It is believed that the people, having more confidence in the strong banks and that the money withdrawn today will at once be deposited and a better feeling established in financial circles, which will make money easier. The suspended banks expect to resume business in a short time. The constant drain on the banks by scared depositors has brought about the crisis.

It is stated by bankers that no less than $5,000,000 has been drawn from the banks during the last three months. Of this $3,000,000 has gone to the East in the regular line of business, but there is $5,000,000 hoarded in the city. The safety deposit vaults are full and there is reason to suppose that the houses of working men contain secret places in which their savings are hidden. If one-fifth of that amount was let into circulation the stringency in Denver would cease.

SAVINGS BANKS ASSIGN.

Late this afternoon two more savings banks assigned. The first one was the North Denver Savings bank, it being followed by the private bank of Stephens & Hanchett, known as the Capital Savings Bank. No schedules of assets or liabilities have been filed; but their deposits are not thought to have been heavy.

THE MCNAMARA COMPANY ATTACHED.

The store of the McNamara Drygoods company, doing business at Sixteenth and California streets, is in the hands of the sheriff. Attachments aggregating over $[illegible] were served on the firm at an early hour this morning. The Union National bank, which itself suspended this morning, precipitated the trouble by securing the first attachment at 12:37 o'clock, just after midnight. The rest of the attachments followed in rapid succession. The Union National bank's attachment was for $[illegible]. The attachment was obtained from Matt Adams, clerk of the District court, who was awakened from his slumbers by the bank's attorneys.

M. S. Noah, installment furniture dealer, assigned to Calvin C. Hill this morning. The failure was due to inability to collect outstanding bills, and a general depression of the money market. His assets are placed at $[illegible] and his liabilities at $[illegible], about equally divided between local and eastern creditors.

Albert Nelson, the well known restaurant man of Curtis street, this morning made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to Frank Anderson. He places his assets at about $[illegible] and his liabilities at about $[illegible]. The assets consist of real estate valued at $[illegible] and subject to incumbrances of $[illegible] and about $[illegible] worth of personal property, stock and fixtures, etc. The liabilities consist of claims of Denver and eastern creditors.

The John Mouat Lumber company was attached to day on a claim of the German National Bank of $[illegible]. The sheriff placed three custodians in charge of the company's property and the company then made an assignment to William B. Palmer. No schedule was presented.

India's New Coinage System.

LONDON, July 18.—In the House of Commons to-day Prime Minister Gladstone, in replying to questions asked upon the subject, denied that there was any artificial restriction of the coinage of silver in India. The Austrian system, he said, was analogous to the new Indian system of coinage. The quantity of silver coined in India would not be regulated by the convenience of the government but by the wants of the country.

ECKELS TALKS.

The Comptroller of the Currency on the Situation.

THINKS IT IS TEMPORARY.

Solid Institutions Are Not Endangered—The Result of Over-Speculation—Official Talk in New York Bankers.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Comptroller of the Currency, James H. Eckels was a guest of his predecessor, ex-Comptroller A. D. Hepburn at the Union League club the evening. The affair was stated by the distinguished diners to be a purely social affair, given as a compliment to the new comptroller, and for the purpose of enabling him to meet the New York bankers. The gathering of so many of the leading financiers of the country at this particular time and the presence in this city of the Comptroller of the Currency attracted much attention, and the meeting between Eckels and the bankers was regarded more as a conference on the monetary situation and the prospective measures for its relief than as a purely social meeting.

Comptroller Eckels in response to a few words of welcome from his host, Comptroller Hepburn, said: "When I accepted the invitation to be present this evening it was that I might indulge myself in the personal pleasure of meeting some of the representatives of the great financial institutions of your city. I did not then—nor do I now intend to make a formal address, but there are one or two things that may not be inappropriate to the time and occasion. The condition which confronts the American people is one that deserves the thoughtful attention of every citizen who has at heart the interest of the country. It is not a time of panic, because we have passed the period in our history when a panic is a possibility, but it is one of a slow liquidation, the result of undue speculation and unwise financial legislation. Nothing is to be gained by taking on a fright that is unwarranted by either the surroundings past or the immediate future. What the American people ought to do in the midst of the failures that have occurred is not to give way to ungoded fear or alarm, but to study the character of the institutions which have failed, the causes which have produced them and the localities in which they have occurred. After such a study let them view the solvent institutions everywhere about them and the conclusion [illegible] forces is, that the legitimate life of the country is not threatened, but instead will come out of the present turmoil the stronger for having passed through it.

"In conservative business centers the failures have been few, either in banking or other lines. Bad banking at any such times is dangerous and most inevitably brings disaster upon those who engage in it. The present stringency has simply hastened the closing of some banks because they were inherently weak. Others have closed as a resultant effect of having kept alive the operations of speculators in the extreme West and in portions of the South. The art has not been discovered of making something out of nothing, and the financier who stakes his all upon an unbuilt city, reaching out into the waste places of the earth, must bring about the ruin of his own and kindred institutions which have trusted in him and pinned their faith to assets yet unborn.

"[illegible] upon apparently stable institutions in boom cities of the States of Washington, California, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri, which have in turn injured solvent ones, but the States of New England and the East and the Middle States and those of the Northwest borders than of the South have thus far escaped; and why, because the foundation upon which they are built is rock and not sand.

"Such a review as that which I have indicated cannot but have the effect of quieting the fears of the timid and encouraging those who have thus far maintained an unswerving faith in the speedy coming of better times. It ought to check the [illegible] disaster by withdrawing from solvent institutions the money which the depositor cannot possibly use. The people are hoping and asking much from the banks of the country. In turn the banks have the right of considerate treatment from the people. Let those who have so long transacted business with the banking institutions place sufficient confidence in them to know and feel that if in years they have proved safe they are likely to do so in the present emergency. Runs upon banks destroy the interest which otherwise would be protected and those who indulge in them cause to come about the thing which they say they wish to avert.

"In conclusion, permit me to say, that I indulge neither in extravagance of speech nor unique flattery when I say that the course followed by the banks of this great city throughout the past stress has been such as to commend them to the good wishes of every citizen of the republic. There has been displayed a wisdom that has met every emergency and the safe financial condition of affairs on the part of the banks has been a constant source of inspiration to all the country."

Each of the gentlemen present then followed in brief and informal speeches.

A Panic in Wheat.

CHICAGO, July 18.—It was like the Johnstown flood for a while to-day in the wheat trade. The speculators took fright at the alarming financial reports from both East and West and let go their holdings in a way approaching the panicky. Altogether it was a day that left scars. A decline of 2½ per bushel in wheat in an hour would be a heavy falling off if the price had been a dollar instead of only 60 cents. That was the limit of the decline and it closed with a net loss since yesterday of 1¾. Corn sympathized slightly and is marked down ¼ cents. Provisions were in a slumpy condition. Lard is off 50 cents and ribs 47½. The decline in pork was 10 cents.

Thousands Out of Work.

ELWOOD, Ind., July 18.—A deplorable condition of affairs exists among the poorer classes of this city. Over 2000 workmen are out of employment and many are in suffering circumstances with starvation staring them in the face. The stagnation in business circles prevents them from obtaining any work and with no prospect of immediate relief in this direction they are in a very pitiable condition. In order to alleviate them Mayor Maloney has called a meeting of the Council to devise means for their support.

A Severe Storm.

[illegible] the worst storms ever known in this section visited here about 5 o'clock this afternoon. In this city roofs were blown completely off of two large brick houses and a number of other roofs were raised. Families in the drench houses were obliged to move out, one roof was blown against a house opposite, causing much damage. Large trees in many sections were blown down, obstructing the thoroughfares.

No one was injured, but there were many narrow escapes. At one time hailstones as large as chestnuts came down.

KANSAS CONSPIRATORS.

Illegal Mobs Encouraged by Populist State Officials.

CHICAGO, July 18.—A special to The Herald from Topeka says: A great many people believe that the wholesale abandoning of military companies in the State by the adjutant general and the collection of State arms, is the beginning of a plan prearranged and mapped out by the Populist administration that will end in bloodshed, if not in revolution. Adjutant General Artz is now in Leavenworth disarming the Jackson military company, which is composed of colored Republicans. Dispatches from Leavenworth to-day state that the people fear that he intends to turn the guns over to the coal mine strikers who march to the mines each morning and overawe and bulldoze those who want to return to work. The people of Southern Kansas also believe that the various militia companies in the State have been abandoned with a view to turning over their arms to the striking miners. Walters, who is directing the strike, is acting under the orders of Governor Lewelling, and the two seem determined to keep the men away from the mines who want to go to work. Yesterday, when it was reported that a gang of men would enter the mines of the Kansas and Texas Coal company to go to work, Walters and his committee called out several hundred Bohemian, Italian and Irish miners and with a brass band marched to the mine and forced the men to leave. The strikers carried pot-banners and clubs, and many were armed with revolvers, declaring vengeance against any man who entered the shaft.

HUNGER AT CREEDE.

A Plan to Secure Provisions for Destitute Miners.

CREEDE, Colo., July 18.—The citizens of Spar in their dilemma as to how to get food, have decided upon the following plan: Two committees are to be appointed, one to visit the cattle men, the other to visit the milling men of the valley, and propose to them that they furnish beef and flour to the men payable in vouchers redeemable when the people get to work. If the vouchers are not redeemed as provided for, the committeemen, who are thoroughly reliable men, will stand good for the money.

There is no use denying the fact that many of the people here are in sorry straits, but all are hoping for beneficial results from the Congressional session.

THE JURY'S VERDICT.

An Attempt to Fix the Responsibility for the Cold Storage Fire.

CHICAGO, July 18.—After its prolonged investigation, the coroner's jury investigating the World's Fair cold storage calamity reached a verdict at 5:30 this evening. The jury held to the grand jury the following persons: D. H. Burnham, director of works of the World's Fair; Fire Marshal Edward Murphy, of the World's Fair fire department; J. B. Skinner, president of the Hercules Iron company; Charles A. McDonald, secretary and treasurer of the Hercules Iron company.

The hearing of the evidence was concluded at 3:15 p. m. when Coroner McHale gave the cases to the jury. The jury reached its conclusion much more quickly than the time they were out would indicate, as there were sixteen deaths, the causes of which they were called to consider, and each requiring a separate case. The verdict was the same in each case, and read as follows:

"We, the jury, find that the deceased came to their deaths from injuries and burns received at a fire of the Cold Storage buildings at the World's Fair grounds on July 10, 1893, and we, the jury, find from the evidence presented that Charles A. McDonald, John B. Skinner, D. H. Burnham and Edward W. Murphy be held to the grand jury for criminal negligence and there held until discharged by the course of law."

The indicted men will not give bail to-night but will be expected in court to-morrow at 10 a. m.

Director-of-Works Burnham, who was to day held to the grand jury at the coroner's inquest on the Cold Storage fire, said to night that he had not yet been officially notified of the jury's action. "This is a great surprise to me," said Mr. Burnham. "I was never officially notified of the unsafe condition of the Cold Storage tower and Engineer Shanklin never reported the tower as dangerous."

Mr. Burnham then reviewed his testimony given at the inquest and said he understood that Fire Marshal Murphy was instructed to notify him of the jury's action by Coroner McHale, but as he had not seen Murphy he declined to say what his defense in the matter would be.

Edward Murphy, chief the Columbian Fire Department, who was also indicted, could not be seen to night. He had left his office early, retiring to his room.

Fire Marshal Edward W. Murphy was apparently very much affected by the result of the investigation. "I did not expect it," he said. "I think it unjust and uncalled for. I was neither negligent, nor was I guilty of misconduct at that fire."

President John B. Skinner, of the Hercules Iron works, said the verdict was ambiguous. "The fire department and ourselves cannot both be guilty in this case. It must be one or the other. Our conclusions were never the same after the alarm was turned in. Besides, I am certain no liability can follow. There is no evidence against us to justify that."

Cotton Mills Closing.

BOSTON, July 18.—The Amoskeag mills, which will close for the month of August, according to the action of its directors at Manchester, N. H., employs 8000 hands. It has a payroll of $252,000 per month and uses 6,000,000 pounds of cotton per week. Other mills are likely to follow suit. The Amoskeag mill is the largest producer of manufactured cotton in the world.

AROUND PIKES PEAK.

A Languid Interest in Denver's Bank Disturbances.

LOCAL BANKS NOT AFFECTED.

Progress of the Season at Manitou and Green Mountain Falls—An Increasing Number of Tourists.

Many in the city yesterday rumored that the city of Colorado Springs was going to close its banks. As usual the rumors were greatly exaggerated. Everyone was anxious for news but beyond curiosity to hear what was going on and general street comment there was little attention paid to it here. Whatever happens to the rest of Colorado the people of this city, and in fact of the whole country of Colorado Springs is all right. A traveling man from Chicago who came down on a train Monday night expressed to Frank Perkins the sentiment that fill the minds of most people. He said: "I have traveled all over Colorado and the West and Colorado Springs is the most solid, if not the only solid town I know of." Colorado Springs does not depend upon agriculture or mining. It has existed and been prosperous through other panics and will come out of this one unscathed. It is a fact that although the "shaft" has been on for some time now not a single failure has been recorded in the city that can be attributed to the stringency in the money markets. Not a bank in this city is in any way connected with any of the Denver banks that failed, nor has anyone drawn them by the broken backs.

Our banks are in splendid condition as their reports show. A very important feature of our banks that the reports do not show is that the heaviest depositors are connected with the banks and would never draw their money, no matter how much excitement there might be. The blue depositors might draw and draw without causing a ripple of excitement in any bank here. We have not the class of depositors here that caused the trouble in Denver yesterday. A gentleman of this city who was in Denver yesterday and all of the banks said last night to a GAZETTE representative:

"The run on the Denver banks was made only by small depositors and did not amount to much after all. The crowds were large but the checks drawn were of small [illegible]. All the banks that had taken proper precautions had not the least difficulty in meeting all demands made upon them and everything now points to a clearing of the financial atmosphere in that city. The scare money has nearly all been drawn out and those best informed do not expect any further trouble. We are very fortunate in having a different community from Denver. Our people have confidence in their banking institutions and we predict that Colorado Springs will be the only town in the State which will go through the scare, for scare it is, without any bank failure. This will certainly be the case if our people are as wise as we believe them to be."

The following verse, printed on the bottom of a calendar sheet for July 17, is very "pat":

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Money on call has been easy, ranging from 5 to 6, last loan at 5, and closing offered at 5. Prime mercantile paper 5@12 per cent.

Speculation at the Stock Exchange was characterized by great depression. A sharp decline in American securities at London, coupled with rumors of the financial embarrassment of an important house there, and heavy sales for foreign account, started liquidations here on an extensive scale and prices declined rapidly. Freed on by their success, the bears circulated stories affecting the credit of some of the most prominent houses in London, Berlin and Amsterdam.

On this side the leading factor in creating anxiety as to the stock market was the panic reported in Denver, where a general run was made upon the banks. The bears simply carried everything before them and a very uneasy feeling prevailed in stock circles although it is to be said that the local money market remained easy and despite the great shrinkage in values not a single failure occurred at the Stock Exchange. The decline was equal to 1@3 points as compared with the final quotations of yesterday and toward the close stocks were sold almost regardless of price.

During the last hour of business there was an outpouring of long stock on a vague rumor that a down-town bank had called upon the clearing house for assistance, but upon investigation it was found that there was absolutely no truth in the story. A few stocks rallied ½ to 1½ per cent. in the final transaction, but speculation left off heavy in tone. The sales footed up 755,500 shares.

Exchange on London 4.89½; sight drafts, 4.91@4.92; Bar silver, 72.

DO NOT DIE TO WIN!

But take out an Endowment policy in The Provident Life and Trust Co. In the event of the death of the insured the amount of the policy would be paid to the beneficiary; or if the insured lived to the maturity of the endowment the amount would be paid to himself, and would so exceed the cost as to make the policy a good investment. It is difficult to save $500 or $1000 per year for an ordinary investment, but with above plan you can save and invest $100 or $200 per year, protect the family, and eventually draw out several thousand dollars.

THAT APPROPRIATION.

The City Council has rescinded its appropriation of $1,000 for the Chamber of Commerce, but we hope the action is not final and that more mature consideration may convince a majority of the members of the Council that the appropriation is proper and necessary and also legal.

Judge McMorris [illegible] that even in case it had been brought to realize the importance of the money being expended [illegible] the City Council [illegible] the amount of any part thereof. It is found also that [illegible] principle that [illegible]

[illegible] for the Fourth of July celebration are illegal upon a construction of the general statute which confers power upon municipal corporations.

Now the general statute provides that the City Council shall have power to appropriate money for corporate purposes only. It also goes on and specifies seventy-six of these corporate purposes. It nowhere declares, however, that these are the only purposes which are to be deemed corporate purposes within the meaning of the act. This the city attorney acknowledges, but thinks it is doubtful whether the Council has any power to grant money for purposes not thus specified in the statute.

There is another section of the statute which bears upon this matter, and which we think covers the ground. Section 76 is in which it is provided that "the City Council shall possess all the legislative powers (and appropriation is a legislative power) granted in this act, and other corporate powers of the city not herein, or by some ordinance of the City Council, conferred on some officer of the city." There is besides a "general welfare" clause, which gives the Council power to pass ordinances for such purposes as shall seem necessary, among other things, "to promote the prosperity" of the city.

It seems to us that here is simply a case of strict construction vs. broad construction. The council is clothed with power for corporate purposes; a number of those purposes are specified; no declaration is made that these are the only purposes within the meaning of the statute. A broad construction certainly would give the council power to grant money for a corporate purpose so desirable as furthering the material prosperity of the city by advertising.

So much for the law. As for precedent, that is all in favor of the appropriation. The Council has appropriated money to entertain the President of the United States; to encourage the fire companies in athletic competitions; to entertain the conclave of Knights Templars; to celebrate the nation's birthday by displays of fireworks. Those who voted for such appropriations certainly have no excuse for voting against the appropriation for the Chamber of Commerce. Such appropriations are made by many western cities, and are generally recognized as perfectly legitimate. The work of the Chamber of Commerce is the work of the whole city. The appropriation is a very small one—only $1 on every $1,000 of taxable valuation, which is $1 on every $1,000 of real valuation, and would not be a burden upon any taxpayer.

We trust the Aldermen will think this matter over, and that as the result of their thinking they will reconsider their action of Monday night and appropriate $1,000 for a very necessary and altogether proper corporate purpose.

MEN'S WORST ENEMIES.

California shows a section of one of the Redwood giants, more than 1 foot in diameter. These include three pathogenic species, one of which was almost invariably present, and might have been derived from grass and hay, as it exists in this soil. The saliva of the cat was very different in appearance, and from it was isolated a new bacillus, which is specially pathogenic to rabbits and guinea pigs. The dog's saliva contained the largest variety of bacteria, including among the pathogenic kinds that of boils and carbuncles.

Luminous Paint.—According to Lakey, the sulphides of calcium, strontium, barium and zinc the last prepared by Dr. Phipson, of Chicago are phosphorescent after exposure to sunlight for a certain time. But only the calcium sulphide retains the phosphorescent power for any considerable time. The pure calcium sulphide gives forth a yellowish light but after being raised to a red heat, and receiving the addition of a small quantity of a salt of bismuth, it is transformed into a material emitting a violet light for more than forty-eight hours after an exposure of a few seconds to sunlight. A luminous paint may be made by adding two pounds of this freshly prepared calcium sulphide and two ounces of glycerine to a solution of one pound of pure white gelatine in two quarts of warm water. The liquid should be applied hot, and two coats are sufficient. For out door use a little shellac in borax should be added to the paint, which should receive also a protective coat of shellac varnish.

In everybody's mouth, the San Berardo cigar.

A MICHIGAN LOG.

In diameter. A tack placed in the section near the center shows the stage of growth which the tree had attained in the year that Columbus discovered America, and then this veteran of the forests was 300 years old. The Argentine Republic is well represented by a section of a palm tree, which looks like mineral and which is said to be indestructible when placed in the earth and therefore immensely valuable for telegraph poles, fence posts and other construction. There are specimens of the famous Ching Ching wood from Siam, out of which all manner of tools are fashioned; the pradoo knee from the same country which polishes like onyx, great sections of the Oregon larch or tamarack, and so many similar specimens from all over the world that one finds a trophy pyramid a little exposition in itself.

The general system of display followed throughout the building is well contrived to show the nature and value of the various specimens. Each section of a tree exhibited is so prepared as to show the heart and sapwood by four planes—transverse, radial, oblique and tangential. These surfaces are so highly polished that the commercial value of the wood may be readily judged. With each log come specimens of the tree's limbs and another section on which is displayed the seed and leaf of the tree.

At the eastern or lake front entrance to the building is a vestibule worth going miles to see. It was erected by the Southern Lumber Manufacturers' association, and was designed to show the value of the various species of southern pines. The walls and ceilings are of this lumber throughout, and, notwithstanding the fact that the result is rich and pleasing, beyond description. The exhibit cost $10,000, and was money well invested by the enterprising southerners.

New South Wales makes a fine showing, her enclosure being formed of polished boards. She excels in cedars. One plank of cedar 9 feet long and 6 feet broad, was recently sold to the Pullman company for $500. Brazil has a neat pavilion and a comprehensive showing of her wonderful woods, including cedar and ornamental specimens, the latter polishing like bronze. Kentucky sends more than one hundred and fifty varieties of wood, and the entrance to her pavilion is through the heart of a sycamore tree 16 feet in diameter. British Columbia shows fine maples and firs and cedars, and has a limb from a fir tree that is itself a pretty good log, being two feet in diameter and solid. West Virginia, the wonderful timber state which was for a long time overlooked by capitalists, but which now is being heavily drawn upon and is amassing fortunes for those who were smart enough to obtain big holdings, astonishes a great many visitors with the variety and value of its wood.

Ohio has a novel display, showing the wood, the bark, the leaves and burrs of her varieties, both polished and unpolished in a well-arranged pavilion. She also shows 500 specimens of medicinal barks, roots and herbs. Michigan is magnificent and comprehensive, and so is Wisconsin. North Carolina is intensely interesting, for she has not only a display of products, but large and exceedingly fine pictures of her grand native forests. In addition to this George Vanderbilt, who is constructing at Asheville, that state, the finest country home or palace in America, makes an exhibit of his own. His head forester was educated in the German school, and has prepared the exhibit of his employer in a thoroughly scientific manner.

Of course every one wants to see the marvelous display of California redwoods, walnut, maples and oaks. Great trunks are shown, and also slabs large enough for the floors of rooms in single pieces and all beautifully polished. The Arizona petrified wood is among the most wonderful of nature's handiworks. Wisconsin is rich in oak, cherry, black walnut, locust, spruce, tamarack, diamond willows and canoe and paper birches. Minnesota and the Dakotas make surprisingly good showings, while Oregon and Washington exhibit forestry riches equal to those of California. The latter state has a cedar slab of giant size that was cut eighteen and one half feet from the ground and cedar shingles that will neither split, warp nor rot. Oregon proudly exhibits a sawed from a tideland spruce tree that was 300 feet high, or fifty feet higher than the top of the Administration building, and that was upwards of 300 years old. The log was nut twenty-five feet from the ground and is nearly ten feet in diameter.

France and Germany make scientific forestry displays, while Japan shows with her usual art what may be done with the wonderful bamboo and other of her wood products.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

[Written for THE GAZETTE.]

MELTING IRON IN WATER.—The use of a vase of water as a powerful electric furnace is a feat worthy of the modern magician of science, and since its accomplishment by two Belgian electricians—Messrs. Lagrange and Hoho—possible applications of this form of heater have been suggested in great variety. Thus far it seems to have been tested chiefly in forging and welding metals. In a process attributed for some reason to M. Julien, of Brussels, the iron bar to be operated upon forms one pole of a source of electricity, the other being a lead plate in the acidulated water or salt solution. The passage of a sufficient current causes oxygen to be given off at the anode, or lead plate, and hydrogen at the cathode, or iron bar, and the immersed portion of the iron is rapidly heated by the resistance to the current offered by its gaseous envelope. It is claimed that temperatures up to 4000 F. can be attained in this way. No difficulties are experienced in regulating the temperature between 800° and 1200° as necessary for forging and welding iron, since the degree of heating depends upon the proportionate size of the anode to that of the cathode, or the current density, not upon the pressure.

DISEASE-PRODUCING MICROBES IN SALIVA.—An examination of the saliva of a large number of horses, dogs and cats has been made in Rouen. In that of the horse, bacteria of various kinds were found. These include three pathogenic species, one of which was almost invariably present, and might have been derived from grass and hay, as it exists in this soil. The saliva of the cat was very different in appearance, and from it was isolated a new bacillus, which is specially pathogenic to rabbits and guinea pigs. The dog's saliva contained the largest variety of bacteria, including among the pathogenic kinds that of boils and carbuncles.

VIEWS! VIEWS!

The W. E. Hook View Co.'s views are the best made. When buying views compare them with any other make. That is all we ask. You do the rest.

The best 5x8 views published 60c per dozen, 5c each straight, one or a hundred. No shop-worn, soiled views—all clean, bright and beautiful. This cut in price will be continued until the view makers arrange to restore the price of 5x8 views to the old price, viz: $1.50 per dozen. We will sell views in every city and town in the state, too, at 60c a dozen. We did not commence cutting the price on views, but propose now to take a hand in the business and put the price where it won't pay a cent to make them. We are ready at any time to arrange with the other view makers to return to the $1.50 rate; but until such times we are in the swim with the best views on earth at 60c per dozen. You can have 10,000 clean, bright views to select from. Our Colored Photographs in every size and style are superior to all others and 33 per cent less in price. The most important view dealers in this locality handle our work; The Consolidated Stationery Co., G. J. Wellington, at College Book Store; Raymond Reed, Postoffice Book Store; Kirschner's Fur Store, Pike's Peak avenue; A. M. Swain, Pike's Peak avenue; G. Farrington, Cheyenne Canon; E. L. Rice, Garden of the Gods; Chas. W. Grant, Manitou; or at headquarters, 309 North Tejon, Colorado Springs. We have the finest studio in the city, and will make you the best cabinet portraits at $1.50 per dozen, and will not ask you for money until you are satisfied. "That's business," come and see our work.
